

ABSTRACT

An exemplary method for managing requests in a mobile device system comprises the steps of assigning a priority to each queue in a set of priority queues, inputting requests into the set of priority queues based on a priority associated with each request, merging multiple requests in the set of priority queues into a merged request based on priorities associated with the multiple requests and a destination for the multiple requests, and sending the merged request to a request queue for a connection in a connection pool for the destination.

10

15

20

25

30

35